It is a strange fact, indeed, that men who profess to be Christians will tolerate the whisky peddler and moonshiner by buying their abominable swill, which they imbibe in their system, dulling their souls and deadening their consciences. AWFUL WARNIN G.

The Fateful Fate of Those Who Despise the Lord.

Death at the Banquet Board—The Lessons Taught by Belshazzar's Feast—Sermon by Rev. Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage, D. D.

At Sunday's services Dr. Talmage took for his subject, "Handwriting on the Wall," the text chosen being Dan. 5. "In that night was Belshazzar, the king of the Chaldeans, slain."

Night was about to come down on Babylon. The shadows of her 250 towers began to lengthen. The Euphrates rolled on, touched by the fiery splendors of the setting sun, and gates of brass, burnished and glittering, opened and shut like doors of flame. The hanging gardens, built up at the head of the deep, began to pour from starlit flowers and dripping leaf a fragrance for miles around. The streets and squares were lighted for dance and frolic and promenade. The theaters and galleries of art invited the wealth and pomp and grandeur of the city to rare entertainments. Scenes of riot and wassail were mingled in every street, and godless mirth and outrageous excess and spleen of wickedness came to the palace's pulse to do their work in God's darkness.

A royal feast to-night at the king's palace! Rushing up to the gates are chariots, upholstered with precious cloths from Dedan, and drawn by fire-eyed horses from Togarmah, that rear and neigh in the grasp of the charioteers, while a thousand lords dismount, and women, dressed in all the splendors of Syrian emperors and the colors of blending air and earth, descend. A somber gloom of Tyrian purple and princely embroidery is brought from afar by camels across the desert, and by ships of Tarshish across the sea.

Open wide the gates and let the guest come in. The chamberlains and cup-bearers are all ready. Hark to the rustle of the silks and the carol of the music! See the blaze of the jewels! Lift the bands of Babylon! Let the tambourines blare! Blow the trumpets. Let the night go by with song and dance and oration; and let the Babylonian tongue be praised that will not say "O King Belshazzar, live forever!"

Ah, my friends, it was not any common banquet to which these people came. All parts of the earth had sent their richest viands to that table. Brackets and chandeliers flashed their light upon tankards of burnished gold. Fruits, ripe and luscious, in baskets of silver, adorned with leaves, plucked from celestial conservatories. Vases inlaid with emerald and ridged with exquisite tracery, filled with nuts that were threshed from forests of distant lands. Wine brought from the royal vats, foaming in the decanters and bubbling in the chalices. Tufts of cassia and frankincense wafted their sweetness from wall and canopy. Gorged and fat, following the perfume that came through the open window, bewitched with the perfumes of hanging gardens. Fountains rising up from inclosures of ivory, in jets of crystal, to fall in clattering rain of diamonds and pearls. Statues of mighty men looking down from niches in the wall upon crowns and shields brought from subdued empires. Idols of wonderful work standing on pedestals of marble and alabaster. Emperors stooping about the windows and wrapping pillars of cedar and driftin on floor inlaid with ivory and agate. Music, mingling the thrum of harps, and the clash of cymbals, and the blast of trumpets, in one wave of transport, that went rippling along the wall and breathing among the garlands, and pouring down the corridas, and thrilling the souls of a thousand spectators. The signal is given, and the tables and hosts, both men and women of the land, come around the table. Pour out the wine. Let foam and bubble kiss the rim! Hoist every one his cup and drink to the sentiment: "O King Belshazzar, live forever!" Bearded headband and earcane of royal beauty gleam to the uplifted chalices, as again and again, and again they are emptied. Away with care from the palace! The royal dignity is tattered! Pour out more wine! Give me a glass! I have no more! Ah, give me a glass! It has a most sickly, sweet perfume! Lord shouts to lord, captain ogles captain. Goblets clash; decanters rattle. There come in the obscene song, and the drunken hiccup, and the slavering lip, and the guffaw of idiotic laughter bursting from the lips of princes; flushed, reeling bloodshots; while mingling with it all, "Huzzah! huzzah! for great Babylon!"

What is that on the plastering on the wall? Is it a spirit? Is it a phantom? Is it God? The music stops. The goblets fall from the nerveless grasp. There is a thrill. There is a start. There is a thousand voiced shriek of horror. Let Daniel be brought in to read that writing. He comes in. He reads it: "Weighed in the balance and found wanting."

Meanwhile the Medes, who for two years have been laying siege to that city, took advantage of that carnal and came in. I hear the feet of the conquerors on the palace stairs. Massacre rushes in with a thousand gleaming knives. Death bursts upon the scene, and I shut the door of that banqueting hall, for I do not want to look. There is nothing there but torn banners, and broken wreaths, and the stench of upset tankards, and the blood or murdered women, and the kicked and fumbled carcasses of a dead king. For "in that night was Belshazzar, the king of the Chaldeans, slain."

I go to learn some lessons from all this. I learn that when God writes anything on the wall a man had better read it as it is. Daniel did not misinterpret or modify the handwriting on the wall. It is all foolishness to expect a minister of the gospel to preach always that the people like, and the people choose. You know what shall I preach to you to-night? Shall I tell you of the dignity of human nature? Shall I tell you of the wonders that our race has accomplished? "Oh no," you say, "tell me the message that came from God." I will. If there is any handwriting on the wall it is this lesson: "Repent! Accept of Christ and be born again." I might talk of many other things, but it is the desire of so and so I declare it. Jesus never satisfied those to whom he preached. He said to those who did wrong, and who were offensive in His sight, "Ye generation of vipers! ye whit sepulchres! how can ye escape the damnation of hell?" Paul the apostle preached before a man who was not ready to hear him preach. What subject did he take? Did he say, "Oh, you are a good man, very fine, very noble man, etc., etc." No! He preached of righteousness to a man who was unrighteous; of temperance to a man who was the victim of bad appetites; of the judgment to come to a man who was unfit for it. So we must always declare the message that happens to come to us. Daniel must read it as it is. A minister preached before James I. of England, and James VI. of Scotland. What subject did he take? The King was noted all over the world for being unsettled and wavering in his ideas. What did the minister preach about this man who was James I. of England and James VI. of Scotland? He took for his text James first and sixth: "He that wavereceth is like a wave of the sea driven with the wind and tossed." Hugh Latimer offended the king by sermonizing. The king said, "Hugh Latimer, come and apologize." "I will," said Hugh Latimer. So the day was appointed; and the king's chapel was full of lords and dukes, and the mighty men and women of the country, for Hugh Latimer was to apologize. He began his sermon by saying "Hugh Latimer, be thinking thee! Thou art in the presence of thine earthly king, who can destroy the body, but, behold, this Hugh Latimer, that thou art in the presence of the King of Heaven and earth, who can destroy both body and soul in hell-fire." Then he preached with appalling directness at the king's crimes. ☐

Another lesson that comes to us to-night: There is a great difference between the opening of the banquet of sin and its close. Young man, if you had looked in upon the banquet in the first few hours, you would have wished to leave it. But when the time had come to sit at the feast, "Oh! the grandeur of Belshazzar's feast!" you would have said; but you look in at the close of the banquet, and your blood curdles with horror. The King of Terror has there a ghastly banquet; human blood is the wine, and dying groans are the music. Sin has made itself a king in the earth. It has created a hell in this spiritual world; and there is here but a short time left to those who sit at the feast. "Oh! the grandeur of Belshazzar's feast!" you would have said; but you look in at the close of the banquet, and your blood curdles with horror. It has hung in its banqueting hall the spoils of all kingdoms and the banners of all nations. It has gathered from all music. It has strewn, from its wealth, the tables and floors and arches. And yet how often is that banquet broken up; and how horrible is it end! Ever and anon there is a handwriting on the wall. A king falls. A giant disappears. Earth trembles. The knees of the wicked knock together. God's judgment, like an armed host, breaks in upon the banquet; and that night is Belshazzar, the king of the Chaldeans, slain.

Here is a young man who says, "I can not see why they make such a fuss about the intoxicating cup. Why, it is exhilarating! It makes me feel well! I can talk better, think better, feel better. I do not see why people have such a fear against it." A few steps pass on, and he walks on, and finds himself in the clutch of an evil habit, which he tries to break, but can not; and he cries out, "Oh, Lord God! help me!" It seems as though God would not hear his prayer; and in an agony of body and soul he cries out, "It biteth like a serpent, and it stingeth like an adder." How bright it was at the start! How black it was at the last!

Here is a man who begins to read the scriptures. "They scare so charming," he says; "I will go out and see for myself whether all these things are so." He opens the gate of a sinful life. He goes in. A sinful sprite meets him with her wand. She waves her wand and it is all enchantment. Why, it seems as if the angels of God had poured out vials of perfume in the atmosphere, and mainly on the hillsides where the becoming more radiant with wings and the ravines more resonant with the falling water. Oh! what a charming landscape he sees. But that sinful sprite, with her wand, meets him again; but now she reverses the wand and all enchantment is gone.

The cup is full of poison. The fruit turns to ashes. All the leaves of the bower are forked tongues of hissing serpents. The flowing fountains fall back in a dead pool stanch'd with corruption. The luring songs beset his wife, comes in: "Did you sell the land for so much?" "Yes." It was a sharp and quick as that she was dead. God's judgments are upon those who despise him and defy Him. They come suddenly.

The destroying angel went through.

Do you suppose that any of the people knew that he was coming?

Did they hear the flap of his great wing? No! No! Suddenly, unexpected!

Skilled sportsmen do not like to kill birds, but a point a sprig near by. If they are skilled they make themselves on taking it on the wing, and then wait till it starts. Death is an old sportsman, and he loves to take men flying under the very sun. He loves to take them on the wing. Oh! flee to God this night! If there is one in this presence who has wandered far away from Christ, though he may not have heard the call of the gospel for many years, invite him now to come and banqueting.

Flee to the stronghold of the gospel now is the accepted time; now is the day of salvation.

Good night, my young friends, may you have rosy sleep, guarded by Him who never slumbers! May you awake in the morning strong and well! But oh! am I not a desider of God? Is this thy last night on earth? Shouldst thou be awakened in the night by the sound of a knocking at the door, and there be shadows floating in the room, and a hand writing on the wall, and you feel that your last hour has come, and there be a fainting at the heart, and a tremor in the limb, and a catching of the breath—then thy doom would be but an echo of the words of the text: "In that night was Belshazzar, the King of the Chaldeans slain."

Oh! that my Lord Jesus would now make himself so attractive to your souls that you can not resist him; and if you have never prayed before, or have not prayed since those days when you knelt down at your mother's knee, then that to-night you might pray, saying:

"Just as I am without one plea
And that Tho' bid me come to Thee,
O Lamb of God, I come!"

But if you can not think of so long a prayer as that, I will give you a shorter prayer that you can say: "God be merciful to me sinner!" Or, if you are not thinking of so long a prayer, that I will give you a still shorter one that you may utter: "Lord, save me, or I perish!" Or, if that be too long a prayer, you need not make it. Use the word "Help!" Or, if that be too long a word, you need not use any word at all. Just look and live!

BURIED GOLD IN CALIFORNIA.

The Hidden Treasures of Priests, Pirates, Robbers and Miners.

Treasure-seeking parties are out in California trying to find the gold supposed to have been buried by Spanish padres, pirates, miners, robbers and others. During the conquest of California many of the Spaniards buried gold, alias, or jars, of silver, gold and jewels, the hiding places of which were forgotten in the long flight. For the most part, however, there were no banks in California and the Spaniards kept their gold and silver in jars, which was either buried on the premises or walled up in the adobe houses. The money of the missions was kept in the same manner. Each mission had a treasure room, and this fact was well known by bandits so the cunning padres carved holes in the thick walls and practically sealed up the treasures in them.

When the missions were secularized by the Mexican government the priests had no chance to carry away their treasure, and, rather than inform the government officials, they perhaps let it remain hidden. This is the common belief of both Mexicans and Americans, and has led to a great deal of burrowing around the walls of mission buildings, and the search for hidden treasures. Sheep walls are being uniformly stiff in thickness, they stand a great deal, otherwise they would have fallen some time ago. A great deal that has been written about leather sacks of gold buried under mission churches is fiction, but the treasure seekers fondly believe that there is some fact to it. Of the twenty-one mission churches, they say each had from $25,000 to $100,000 in gold and silver. The padres also had their savings.

It is affirmed that the padres did not carry any of the money away. Some of the treasure hunters get direct tips from spiritualists.

Another theory that there must be lots of buried gold in California is based on the belief that in the early mining days the miners frequently buried their pay in the ground to return to claim it.

Many of them were killed and the secret of the hiding places of their gold died with them. There certainly was a great deal of buried gold in California, besides that in the mines in a crude state. At several points on the bay of San Francisco pirates are said to have buried money. Telegraph hill, in the northern portion of the city, is a favorite spot for treasure-hunting for pirates' treasure, and frequently some of the southeners direct fortune-hunters to a particular spot, where they delve and dig until stopped at the point of a shotgun by some property-owner. Very little treasure has been found, but the depth of the diggers seems to be unchanged.—N. Y. Post.

By dint of much drilling the affair passed off very creditably, and was heralded as one of the prettiest home divorces of the season.—Detroit Tribune.

OF GENERAL INTEREST.

—With the early pensiveness the problem a point was the most serviceable and a long time elapsed before it was definitely solved.

Cannons, set in wood, are caused by bad ripening or exposure, and the invariable signs of this disease in wood are yellowish patches on the ends of the pieces or yellowish dust in the cracks.

The sheets of steel for pea-making are, in their original condition, eight feet long and three feet wide. From these strips are cut wide enough to permit of the cutting of three or four pens.

A hat is "pounded" or smoothed by means of a machine which polishes the whole circumference with emery powder. Formerly this process was done by hand, the workmen using pumice stone for that purpose.

A peculiar Puritan-like sentence was imposed on three offenders in Norristown, Pa., a few days ago. They were accused of assault and battery, and were released on their promise to accompany their accuser to church on each of the twelve next succeeding Sundays.

The first gold pens made in this country were manufactured by hand, the gold being cut from strips of the metal by scissars, and every subsequent operation being performed by hand. These hand-made gold pens cost from $2 to $20, and were far inferior to the machine-made article of the present day.

—Though contrary to the usual practice, night air will ventilate a cellar more thoroughly and cause less humidity than the hot air of midday, provided the windows are left open to leave them open until six in the morning, and the air will be cooler and dryer than if the cellar is closed at night and open during the day. The screens or gratings should be so arranged that the windows can be opened and closed without moving them.

—M. Moissan recently exhibited the largest black diamonds ever found to the Academie des Sciences. It weighs three thousand seven hundred and sixteen carats, is incomparably brilliant, and has the size of a large pearl. It came from Bahia, in Brazil, where it was found last July. The largest black diamonds previously known weighed six hundred and twenty, eight hundred and ten and one thousand seven hundred and carats and were not free from flaws.

The guns were hauled overland from Cronstadt, two centuries ago, through Russia and Siberia, nine thousand miles, and were the size of a large pearl. C.) is the oldest extant and probably the only fable made since Nathan's fable of the poor man. (II Sam. xii, about 1030 B. C.) is next in antiquity. The earliest collection of fables extant is of eastern origin, and preserved in the Sanscrit. The fables of Vishnoo Sarma, or Pilpay, are the most beautiful, if not the most ancient, in the world. Prof. Max Muller traced La Fontaine's fable of the Milkmaid to the Sanscrit fable of the Milkmaid, to which he gave the title "Kashyap's fable," supposed to have been written about 560 or 620 B. C., were versified by Bibrus, a Greek poet, about 130 B. C., and turned into prose by Maximus Planudes, a Greek monk, about 1320.

Wrap for the Coming Season.

Among the wraps for next season appear box coats of gray chinchilla bound with silk braid; seal capes in Inverness shape with chinchilla-lined hood; double-ripple circular capes of Alaskan sable, with arched storm collar; black velvet coats with trimmings of fur; fox-trimmed capes; seal box-coats with collar and reverses of chinchilla; Persian lamb loose-fronted ulsters made of black chinchilla cloth elaborately braided on the full ripple cape collar and cuffs; tan-colored cloth jackets with high collars and reverses of mink or beaver; beige-colored ladies' cloth jackets, with white camel's hair vests; and cuff-trimmed capes, with fur-trimmed collars of lemur and mink; mink-velvet capes, lined with broadcloth and trimmed with jet points and narrow fur bands; white cloth double capes, lined with moleskin and bordered with ermine two inches wide, and coats, pelicans, and redingotes of rich, elegant-looking silk plush that looks exactly like sealskin.

THE HERALD.

SPENCER COOPER. Editor

HAZEL GREEN, KY.
THURSDAY..... Dec. 12, 1895.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

We are authorized to state CHAS. T. BYRD, of Cynthian, as a candidate for the office of Circuit Court Clerk for Wolfe county, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

The Courier-Journal of Monday contained a very sensational story in regard to an alleged shortage of $952.72 in the accounts of our fellow-townsman, G. B. Swango, as register of the land office, which was worked up by State Inspector and Examiner Gardner upon the order of Gov. Brown for an investigation. That there is nothing criminal in the charge is explained by James H. Swango in this way. When a man orders a land patent from the register of lands he perhaps sends only $5.00, when the cost is really $10.00. To keep his books straight and avoid patching in accounts with the patrons of the office, Judge Swango gave receipts for the full fee, trusting to the honor of the said patrons to remit the balance. In many instances these parties have failed to remit, and the consequence is that Judge Swango is left with the bag to hold. Judge Swango left here Tuesday for Frankfort, and will doubtless publish a card explaining the apparent shortage and showing that he is in no wise to blame, other than that it was a loose way of doing business. If so, we will next week publish his card.

Kentucky Democrats will hail with delight the fact that "Tony" Carroll was on Saturday elected to the legislature from the Sixth and Seventh wards of Louisville. The Courier-Journal of Sunday says: "Ex-Speaker A. J. Carroll won a great personal as well as a Democratic triumph yesterday, when he defeated C. A. Blatz, the Republican nominee for representative from the Forty-eighth legislative district by a majority of 452. Mr. Carroll's total vote in the Sixth and Seventh wards was 1,801, while his opponent received 1,349. The A. P. A.s cut a very sorry figure. There was plenty of excitement, but the excellent work of the police prevented any serious trouble."

Green Keller, of the Carlisle Mercury, some time since predicted the election of Gov. Bradley as United States senator, and we incline to the opinion that Green is about right. If he or some other Republican is not elected there will almost surely be a deadlock throughout the sixty day session. The Republicans have the advantage in that they will have the presiding officer, and they will use that advantage for all it is worth.

"Oily" Jeems McCrory, on hearing the news of Tony Carroll's election to the legislature, is said to have remarked, "Do you know that it makes me feel mighty good, because I believe it means a Democratic United States senator?" Maybe so, Jeems, and we hope you are right in your forecast, but will you be "in it" when the count comes?

Gov. Bradley made the trip from Lancaster to Frankfort in the private car of Vice-president J. D. Livingston, of the L. & E. railroad, which was in fulfillment of a proposition made by the latter gentleman during the recent campaign, when he proffered his car in event of Mr. Bradley's election.

The Morgan Messenger is responsible for the statement that a woman of that county a few days since gave birth to two well developed snakes. We have often heard of men "having snakes," but we believe this is the first case on record where a woman has been charged with it.

Gov. Brown was on Friday the recipient of a handsome gift from his appointee. Adjutant General Jack Gross, in a fitting speech presented the retiring governor with the leather lounge and chair which he had used for the past four years, having purchased the articles from the state.

Lampton Makas a Lyric Murmur.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 8, 1895.

Bret. Cooper: Thanks for the copies of THE HERALD with the article and the critique thereon. It is a glittering array of talents that quite overwhelms me. I didn't know I was so able.

But to the moonshiners or the maidens! Well, here's murmur:

Oh, galilee, midwives, on the vales,

That lead to Hazel Green,

Oh, moonshine of the hills and dales,

That sweeten all the scene;

When glorious twin you are, forsoev'r,

To warm the hearts of aged and youth

And make the world more fair.

Yet, moonshine, you must take a fall,

One maiden's more to me than all

The moonshine in the world.

There, is that a satisfactory murmur? With best wishes, many thanks and compliments to your better 17-18, I am yours,

W. J. LAMPTON.

Running On An Upgrade.

Will E. Schoder, formerly an attache of this office, but more recently local editor on the Ashland Daily News, has accepted a position with the Morehead Advance as associate editor, and judging from his work as presented in the last issue of that paper he is going to get there. Ell. Will has the ability to make a first-class associate on any country paper, and unfortunately he has not heretofore demonstrated it, yet for sticking to anything, and in the language of another we wish to call his attention to "the postage stamp. It sticks to one thing until it gets there." If Will will keep this in mind, he will develop into a real newspaper man, and it won't take him a decade to do it. By the way, the Advance is now under editorial control of W. Riley, and the papers should be well edited. The two of them both mounted the tripod. Success to you gentlemen, and may the Advance ever continue to advance.

Wedding Bell.

Tom Lee, of Midland Texas, and Miss Lucy Wallis, of near Daysboro, will be united in the holy bonds of matrimony on Monday morning, and on Tuesday evening, Wm. H. Cord is engaged to officiate at that place, and has been very prosperous. The bride is a daughter of William Wallis, of our country, one of twin sisters, and a beautiful young lady of pleasant manners. THE HERALD throws the old shoe in advance of the ceremony and wishes Mr. Lee and his bonny bride a pleasant journey to their far western home and a long life of happiness.

Wm. H. Cord, who has agreed to officiate at the wedding, whom we have known from a little girl go so far away, we feel that she is in safe hands and that Tom Lee will ever look upon her as "the apple of his eye," and stand ready to comply with every wish.

Misses Mattie and Florence Quicksell, who have been here for several weeks during their sojourn among us, this week returned to their home near Ezel, their parents having removed there a short time since. They are both elegant young women in all that the term implies, and they will be missed from the small society circle of our little town goes without saying. They will not, however, be so far away, but that they may visit our village often, and in behalf of all we bid them a hearty welcome at all times.

Jimmie Brown, of this place, has a coin in his possession that is 111 years old. It is a Spanish coin, 60 cents, and was found under the floor of the old residence of William Trimble, where the building was recently demolished. Jimmie is very fond of his find and thinks some coin crack will yet pay him a handsome sum for it, but it has a hole in it that will likely impair its value. He also has a widow's mite that he is very proud of.

Born, to the wife of Ellsworth Lacy, Saturday night, the 7th inst., a boy. Another recruit for the G. O. P. What will eventually become of this country if the increase in population is all to be Republican? THE HERALD heard a fellow say only a few nights since "It beats the devil. Every man that dies or moves away is a Democrat. Every stranger who moves in and every boy born here is a Republican."

Elmer Bruce Trimble of Mt. Sterling, has been holding a protracted meeting at this place for two weeks past, closed his meeting on Sunday night. While the meeting resulted in but one addition to the church and several confessions, it was nevertheless one of the most interesting and entertaining services held here for sometime. Ell. Trimble left Monday for his home in Mt. Sterling.

At the annual election of officers for Mizpah Lodge No. 367 F. & A. M., of this place, which occurs every year in inst., the ballot will be secreted in the lodge hall, and all members of the lodge are earnestly requested to be present. It will be a feast for the inner-man, and good fellowship will prevail.

Tom Lee, of Midland, Texas, is visiting friends in this vicinity, and rumors have it that he will remain here for some time. He will take with him a life-time inmate. Tom came to St. Louis with 32 car loads of cattle, about 1,000 to head, and availed of the opportunity to come down.

THE FARMING WORLD.

COLD STORAGE ROOM.

Excellent Plan Described by the Editor of "The Farming World."

Cap. H. gives me plan for icehouse with storage room, either underneath or at end, as though best-ice to be used from kitchen. How can we keep the storage-room cold? Can this be done, or will ice melt so rapidly that it would be within 12 hours after being taken to have to remove and fill with ice as needed?

Ice can cool adjacent objects only by absorbing their heat, and consequently melting faster than would be the case if surrounded by nonconducting substances which are more difficult to renew after giving up to the ice whatever heat they will readily yield. Accordingly, therefore, an icehouse will be depleted faster if its contents are relied upon to absorb continually the heat from an apartment of some size, opened from time to time, and perhaps refilled in whole or in part with material comparatively warm. Care must consequently be taken not to expect too much cooling from a limited quantity of ice; but if a reasonable proportion be observed between the size of the ice mass and that of the connected refrigerator, our correspondent's idea is perfectly feasible. As to a detailed plan for carrying it out, we can only—in view of the meager information furnished us as to the dimensions desired, the temperature intended to be preserved in the cold storage room and the kind of goods to be kept there, I suggest that a design somewhat like the following might probably be found useful.

The ice does not rest directly on the joists; but there is a bed of oak lath, about $\frac{1}{2}$ inches, laid across the joists, about 4 or 5 inches apart, on which the ice is laid directly. This is covered by a series of vertical timber from which run between the joists all which carry the water to one point, where it is conveyed outside by a trap pipe. These troughs reach over to the center of the top of the joists, and are soldered together, so that no water will drip on the floor below. It will be seen that in this plan there is no sawdust or other preservative in contact with the ice, and the air of the room circulates around and over the ice. As long as the temperature of the goods stored is above the temperature of the room, there will be a gentle drift around the mass of ice, and cover all the openings in the air, vapors and odors from the goods, will condense on the ice and pass off, so that you can keep milk, cream, butter, fruit and meats all in the same chamber without danger of injuring the flavor of any of them.

At the entrance to the storeroom there must be a vestibule, either inside or outside, as space or circumstances may direct. If outside, the walls should be thick and the door very heavy. The doors, both inside and outside, should be fitted with rubber, so as to close perfectly tight, and both doors must never be opened at the same time. This vestibule should be large enough to contain a fair wagonload of goods, so that if you are receiving a load of stuff, you are not required to stop until all is in the vestibule and ready to store.

The opening for putting in the ice, shown just under the pulley in the cut, has two doors with a space between—each door a foot thick. The window in the cold-room has three sets of sash, well packed or cemented. The walls are six inches thick, lined with 17 inches of sawdust. Thirty-six inches of sawdust are put on the floor over the ice. The building shop is 22 feet long, 14 wide measuring 22 feet from floor to cold-room to ceiling over the ice. The room is 12 feet high, and the cold-room nine feet. Pillars are re-removed under the center of the ice.—Rural New Yorker.

Paste This in Your Scrap Book.

We find this in the last issue of Gardening. Paste it in your scrap book. To destroy cabbage worms, take some dried salt, dry grass, etc., dry on the stove, or in the oven, then take it out with you into the garden. In the evening when the dew is on the plants take a small pinch of this dry powdered salt and dust it on each head; the dew will dissolve it and a slight rain will carry it among the leaves of the cabbage or cauliflower, and it kills every caterpillar it touches, and doesn't hurt the plants any. Do this about once a week. It is quick, simple and effective.

WINTER DAIRYING.

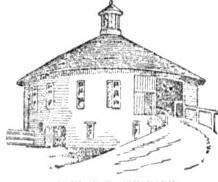

Why There Should Be No Abandonment of the Industry.

There is but little doubt that the coming winter will see a good many farmers abandoning dairying as a winter business on account of the high price of many of the cow feeds and scarcity, but in most of these instances we think a mistake will be made. A disadvantage is that cows are selling cheap, even for winter, and next spring they will be unusually high. The dry cows will be sold at a loss and produce nothing to compensate for their food. When it comes to a problem of exchange, it is doubtful if feed even at present prices can be turned into anything more profitable than 20-cent butter, provided one has a warm barn and the necessary arrangements to well care for his cows, so that there is not an undue demand upon the food to protect the cow from the rigors of winter; and this waste makes the feed bill high, when tar paper and hemlock boards would have accompanied the same purpose and left the food extra—go to have gone either to a more economical feeding of the cow or a greater yield of milk. One of the reasons why the winter dairy will remain is profitable is that there is a daily compensation for one's labor and outlay in feed, as there is a constant call for milk and butter in the winter, and one is not obliged to anticipate or run up bills for the future, as butter and milk are spot cash goods, and it is a quick rotation—if the term may be used—of feed into produce, and as quickly turned into money. Not the least of the economies of the winter dairy is the fact that as now demonstrated, the milch cow will actually do better and produce more of the more rough tools, linseed, fodder, turnips, etc., than corn and colo-nial combined with oats, oil meal and the like, than upon fine and more costly market hay, and this gives the farmer a chance to turn these bulky, unsalable feeds into the finest of foods for humanity, and, more, gives him employment in the winter, and in his interesting and profitable work he finds little time to yearn for a seat in the legislature. The winter dairy has a place in the farmer's farm work, and there should be little abandonment of the industry, for the man who does so will soon regret his decision. Better keep at it.—Practical Farmer.

CIRCULAR COW BARN.

Very Convenient for the Storing and Distribution of Food.

Here is a round cow and horses barn, with lofts overhanging for grain. The objections to basement stables are ns nearly obviated here as they could be anywhere.

In this barn, or any barn, the animals should all head outward, so as to get the air and light. The air vent should be at the top so that the animals get fresh air in winter. The greatest objection to a basement stable is that the moisture from the animals rises through the floor above and penetrates the hay and grain stored upon that floor and often molds them.

On the whole, however, this barn is built on an excellent pattern. One more convenient for the storing and distribution of food for live stock could not well be devised.—Connecticut Farmer.

The Beet Leaf Miner.

Dr. J. A. Lintner, of New York state, as reported in Insect Life, has found the larvae of several species of flies mining the leaves of beets in some vegetable gardens of the state. This insect has also been found to be doing considerable damage to some sugar beet plantations in California. It seems that there is little that can be done in the way of direct remedies for this insect, without sacrificing the foliage, although the foliage is not important to the beet crop after a certain time. Insect Life recommends that cutting and destroying of the tops soon after the roots become well grown. If this plan is adopted, and the fields be plowed and harrowed after the roots are dug, the probabilities are that no serious damage will follow next season.

The Value of Good Roads.

Here in Virginia the value of good roads can be easily appreciated. In those sections where there is country travel by thoroughfares improved in modern style, farms can be sold without effort. Intending purchasers know that a rich farm would be of little value if there were no way to reach a market with the products. For this reason many fine lands, with riches in the soil, are uncultivated and unsought. Good roads double and treble the value of such property. Let the good work of the Good Roads association go on.—Lynchburg Advance.

True to our Readers.
A new class high grade monthly paper has come to us by necessity in our household. Such a journal well-conducted, occupies a special relation to every member of the family circle. One of the best journals of this character we have seen is the Woman's Health Journal, published at Chattanooga, Tenn. The choice stories, charming verse and interesting articles, peculiarly appropriate to young and old. It especially departs from Fashion Among Our Girls. A Page for Mothers. The Home Keeper, With the Children and the Health and Hygiene Department, edited by a competent and experienced physician, make it invaluable to any home.

The HERALD always on the lookout for what will profit its readers, has secured fifty yearly subscriptions to The Woman's Health Journal, which it promises to give away during the next 60 days.

A year subscription to this journal will be given to:

- (1) Every new subscriber to THE HERALD who pays cash;
- (2) Every old subscriber who renews by Nov. 15;
- (3) Any delinquent subscriber who pays an amount equal to his dues.

These subscriptions won't last long. First come, first served. Call at this office and see sample copy.

"Incurable."

We know that sounds quackish to talk about the Electropoese curing incurable diseases, but bear in mind the fact that it is the old treatment that has pronounced the case incurable. We do not make the claim that we can cure all incurable diseases, but we do maintain with all earnestness that in cases pronounced incurable by your family physician is a splendid field for the operation of the Electropoese. It may be just the treatment necessary, and is quite likely to be so. If it fails, this is no argument against the "Poise," but in such a case, the fact of the physician's statement is proven to be true. But many's the patient who has been given up by his physician who has again received life through treatment of the Electropoese.

Kentucky Again.

The contest for the national house of fices bring many interesting facts to light. For instance Kentucky has had speakership twelve times, or more than any state in the union. It has had the Vice Presidency twice, and the Sergeant-at-Arms twice. It never had the speaker. Though a Kentuckian Mr. Winterbotham was keeper of the Forty-ninth congress, but elected from Texas. Pennsylvania has had the clerkship of the house twenty-four terms.

A. E. Kilpatrick, of Fillmore, Calif., had the misfortune to have his leg caught between a cart and a stone and badly bruised. Ordinarily he would have been laid up for two or three weeks, but says: "After using one bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm I began to feel better, and in three days was entirely well. The peculiar soothing qualities which Chamberlain's Pain Balm possesses I have never noticed in any other liniment. I take pleasure in recommending it." This liniment is also of great value for rheumatism and lame back. For sale by John M. Rose.

French on Trial At Hazard.

Fulton French, of Winchester, and the leader of the French faction in the French Versoys, is now on trial at Hazard, Perry county, on the charge of being a party to the murder of Judge Joseph Clegg, for which Adkins and Fields were recently set to the penitentiary for life.

Weak and Mortons

Describes the condition of thousands of people at this season. They have no appetite, cannot sleep and complain of the prostrating effect of warmer weather. This remedy may be compiled by Hood's Sarsaparilla, which creates an appetite and tones up all the organs. It gives good health by making the blood pure.

Hood's PILLS are the best after-dinner pills, assist digestion, cure headache.

Court dress in blue to be modeled on the Venetian costumes of the renaissance. The deputies will appear as Venetian senators.

J. R. DEBUSK.

He Wants Damages.

In the Fayette circuit court last Monday, through Attorney E. L. Hutchinson, George E. Bouck filed suit against Floyd Day and Mike Courtney, comprising the Jackson and Monroe company for $5,000 damages to injuries received by the plaintiff by the breaking of a cable in the mill of the defendants.

For the first time in many years England's channel squadron will be allowed to remain at home ports at Christmas time.

The news comes from Hendricks, Marion county, that Mort Ray, a farmer living near that place, was probably fatally stabbed Friday by George Arnett in a fight over the possession of a hog. Arnett escaped and was at large at last accounts.

Wanted.

200 bushels of good Wheat. Will pay 75¢ per bushel on notes and accounts, or in merchandise, including flour, (S. P. Kerr brand) wheat to be delivered at store in Hazel Green.

J. T. DAY.

A Carlyle celebration was prepared for December 4, the centenary of his birth.

The Toledo Weekly Blada and Campaigns of 1820.

With a great presidential campaign coming next month every thoughtful citizen will need, besides his local paper, a great national weekly. The greatest and most widely known of these is the Toledo Weekly Blada. For thirty years it has been a regular visitor in every part of the union, and is well known at almost every one of the 70,000 postoffices in the country. It is edited with reference to a national circulation. It is a Republican paper, but men of all parties take it because of its frankness and fairness in the discussion of all public questions. It is the favorite family paper, with something for every member of the household. Serial stories, poetry, wit and humor; the Household department (best in the world), Young Folks, Sunday School Lessons, Talman's Sermons, the Farmstead, the Question Box (which answers questions for subscribers), the News of the Week in complete form, and other special features. Specimen copies gladly sent on application, and if you will send us a list of addresses, we will mail a copy to each. Only $1 a year. If you wish to raise a club, write for terms. Address The Blada, Toledo, Ohio.

It seems that some people have little regard for the Lord's day, in certain parts of the country. It is no uncommon occurrence for men to buy and to sell on this day, and to do various kinds of farm work. Our state laws recognize the Creator, and a proper observance of the Lord's day, or the first day of the week. Our people should be brought to appreciate the law of the state, if not the law of God, by those in charge.
